532 Cromwell, another, as the last, fine but not gilt 1 — 2 12

 In the note n. 7 to Ruding (edit. 1840), vol. II, p. 335, the "Dutch Crown" is referred to, but confused with the rare variety known as Tanner's, of which a few only were struck before the original dies by Simon were finally destroyed, after having been repaired for the purpose by Tanner in the reign of George II. It will be seen that the Portrait on the above pieces differs considerably from that by Simon. The "Dutch Crown" is far more rare than the English, and is frequently gilt, but I have never seen a gilt specimen of the one known as Tanner's.—Ed.
